Auravue Beauty

Brand Voice & Content Guidebook

Version: 1.6 | Effective date: June 26, 2026

Document owner: Maya Larsson, Head of Creative Operations

Department: Communications | Contact: maya.larsson@auravuebeauty.com

Industry: Beauty & Cosmetics | Brand archetype: Rebel

1. About This Guidebook

Purpose. This guidebook defines how Auravue Beauty sounds, what language is off-limits, how content must be formatted for each channel, and which legal disclosures are required before publishing. It applies to every employee, agency, freelancer, and AI tool producing customer-facing content on Auravue Beauty’s behalf.

Mission. Our mission is to challenge beauty-industry hype with straight-talking, ingredient-honest products for a generation done with filters.

Who this is for: Marketing, Content, Social, Customer Support, Legal & Compliance review, and any external agency or contractor producing Auravue Beauty content.

Scope: Applies to all channels – social, email, SMS, push, web, paid media, and customer support – across every market Auravue Beauty operates in.

How to use this document: Sections 2-3 define how we sound. Sections 4-6 define what’s off-limits and how content must be formatted. Section 7 is a channel-by-channel playbook. Sections 8-9 cover legal disclosures and crisis protocol. Appendices A and B are a machine-readable rule set and worked examples, useful for training reviewers (human or automated) on real compliant vs. non-compliant content.

Revision History

Version	Date	Author	Summary of Changes
1.6	June 26, 2026	Maya Larsson	Current version – full guidebook consolidation, added crisis protocol and regional disclosure appendix.
1.0	April 27, 2025	Owen Okafor	Added channel-specific character limits and updated restricted word list.
0.1	November 3, 2024	Owen Okafor	Initial draft circulated for stakeholder review.

2. Brand Foundations

Brand Story

Auravue's founder walked out of a dermatology internship fed up with 'clean beauty' claims that had no legal definition and no ingredient list to back them up. The brand's first product shipped with the full ingredient percentage breakdown printed on the box – a habit that became policy.

Positioning Statement

For Gen Z shoppers who read the ingredient list before the marketing copy, Auravue is the beauty brand that shows its work – unlike brands that lean on vague 'clean' and 'natural' labels with nothing to substantiate them.

Competitive Differentiation

Most beauty marketing sells a feeling. Auravue sells the feeling and shows the percentage of active ingredient that earns it – confidence backed by a spec sheet, not a mood board.

Audience Personas

Jae, 19 – College student, skincare-forum lurker

- Goals: Find products that actually match what influencers claim, verified by ingredients.
- Frustrations: Vague marketing claims, brands that don't list percentages.
- Primary channels: TikTok, Instagram, Reddit-adjacent research habits

Priya, 26 – Sensitive skin, burned by 'natural' products before

- Goals: Trust that a claim on the label is actually true.
- Frustrations: Greenwashing, brands that hide behind 'proprietary blend.'
- Primary channels: Instagram, email, product review sites

3. Messaging Pillars & Tagline Library

Messaging Pillars

Ingredients over adjectives. We name the percentage, not just the promise. > “10% niacinamide. That’s the whole formula story.”

Confidence, not hype. We take a stance without resorting to superlatives we can’t back up. > “This isn’t the ‘best serum ever.’ It’s 10% niacinamide that does what 10% niacinamide does.”

Calling out industry nonsense. We name vague industry terms and explain what they actually mean (or don’t). > “‘Dermatologist tested’ doesn’t mean ‘dermatologist approved.’ Here’s the difference.”

Approved Tagline Variations

Context	Approved Line
Primary / brand	Auravue - Do It Right.
Product packaging	Formula, not folklore.
Social bio	Skincare that shows its receipts.
Retail partnership deck	The ingredient-transparent brand Gen Z already trusts.

Taglines must be reproduced verbatim for the context listed. Do not mix and match phrases between variants, and do not create new tagline variants without Brand Owner sign-off.

4. Brand Voice & Tone

Auravue Beauty’s voice is edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative. These traits should be recognizable in every piece of content, regardless of channel or author.

Edgy

We’re not afraid of an opinion, including calling out industry nonsense.

Do	Don’t
“‘Clean beauty’ is a marketing term, not a legal one. Here’s what’s actually in this.”	“Our products are 100% clean and pure!” (undefined claim)

Energetic

Short sentences. Real momentum. No corporate throat-clearing.

Do	Don’t
“New drop. Zero fillers. Let’s go.”	“We are pleased to announce the availability of our newest product line.”

Bold

We take a stance instead of hedging every claim into mush.

Do	Don’t
“This is the only serum in your routine that actually needs a patch test. Do it.”	“Some users may potentially experience some effects.”

Authoritative

Confidence is backed by ingredient transparency, not vague superiority.

Do	Don’t
“2% salicylic acid. That’s the whole story.”	“Our secret formula outperforms everything else.”

Tone by Context

Context	Tone Adjustment
Marketing & social	Full voice expression – lead with personality within the pillars above.
Transactional (receipts, confirmations)	Warm but efficient; clarity outranks personality here.
Customer support (routine)	Calm, helpful, human – avoid scripted-sounding phrases.
Customer support (complaints or errors)	Extra empathy, zero humor, always a clear next step.
Legal, disclosures, and compliance copy	Neutral and precise; voice pillars do not override legal accuracy.

Before & After: Applying the Voice

Product launch post

Generic (off-brand)	Auravue Beauty voice
Introducing our revolutionary new serum with amazing clean ingredients for radiant skin!	New serum. 15% vitamin C, stabilized so it actually works. That's it, that's the post.

Influencer brief line

Generic (off-brand)	Auravue Beauty voice
We'd love for you to share how much you LOVE our product with your followers!	Try it for 2 weeks, then tell your followers what actually happened – good, meh, or bad. We'll take real.

Restock announcement

Generic (off-brand)	Auravue Beauty voice
We are pleased to announce that our best-selling item is back in stock.	It's back. Same 2% salicylic acid, still not for the faint of heart.

5. Restricted & Prohibited Language

The words and phrases below are banned in all Auravue Beauty customer-facing content. If a word isn't listed here but feels like it violates the spirit of this list (hype, unsubstantiated claims, or off-tone language), escalate to Brand or Legal before publishing.

Restricted Term	Category	Why It's Restricted	Use Instead
insane deal	Brand-tone / hype	Reads as discount-bin hype, contradicts the brand's confident-not-desperate tone.	"limited restock," "back in stock"
cheapest	Devalues the product	Positions the brand on price rather than formulation integrity.	"accessible price point"
risk-free	Regulatory / FTC risk	Cosmetic claims implying zero risk of reaction are not substantiable.	"patch-test recommended," "gentle formula" best in the world	Unsubstantiated superlative	Not a claim we can substantiate and inconsistent with the ingredient-transparency positioning.	cite the specific % active ingredient instead hack	Overused / diluted term	Diluted internet slang that reads as try-hard rather than authoritative.	"shortcut," "the one-step version" clinically proven (without citation)	FTC substantiation risk	Any efficacy claim requires a citable study on file with legal.	"in a consumer study of 100 users..." with the study linked dermatologist approved (unqualified)	FTC substantiation risk	Requires a named study or board; 'dermatologist tested' and 'approved' are not interchangeable.	"reviewed by our dermatology advisory panel" (if true and documented) chemical-free	Scientifically meaningless / misleading	Everything, including water, is a chemical; this phrase misleads on safety.	"free from [specific named ingredient]"
anti-aging (unqualified)	FTC substantiation risk	Implies a health claim; must be tied to a specific, substantiated mechanism.	"supports skin elasticity" with cited data guaranteed to work for everyone	Unsubstantiated claim	Skin responses vary; blanket guarantees invite complaints.	"formulated for most skin types; patch test recommended"
toxin-free	Scientifically vague / misleading	"Toxin" is not a defined regulatory term in this context.	name the specific excluded ingredient (e.g. "sulfate-free")
cruelty-free (unless certified)	Substantiation risk	Only use with current third-party certification on file.	"certified cruelty-free by [certifying body]" once verified

General Principles (for anything not explicitly listed)

1. No unsubstantiated superlatives (“best,” “#1,” “revolutionary”) without a citable source on file with Legal.
2. No absolute guarantees of outcome, result, or performance – individual results vary and must be described that way.
3. No manufactured urgency (“only hours left,” “prices going up forever”) unless the constraint is real and verifiable.
4. No borrowed authority (implying a certification, endorsement, or approval that hasn’t been formally granted and documented).

6. Formatting Standards

Standard	Rule
Capitalization	Sentence case for headlines, buttons, and subject lines (capitalize only the first word and proper nouns). Do not use Title Case or ALL CAPS except for the brand wordmark itself.
Oxford comma	Always used in lists of three or more items: “colors, fonts, and tone” – not “colors, fonts and tone.”
Numbers	Spell out one through nine in body copy; use numerals for 10 and above, all statistics, and all measurements (e.g. “3 steps,” “nine reasons,” “24/7”).
Dates	Write dates as Month D, YYYY (e.g. “July 2, 2026”) in body copy; MM/DD/YYYY is permitted only in dense UI tables.
Emoji usage	Emoji are welcome in social and push copy (max 2 per post) to reinforce tone – never in formal emails, legal copy, or disclosures.
Hashtags	Maximum 3 hashtags per social post, placed at the end of the caption, never inline in a sentence. The branded hashtag comes first.
Links & CTAs	Buttons and links use an active verb + outcome (“Start your plan,” not “Click here” or “Learn more”). Never use a bare URL in body copy on channels that support link text.
Accessibility	Every image in customer-facing content must ship with descriptive alt text (not “image of...”); every video must include captions before publishing.
Acronyms	Spell out any acronym on first use per document/page, followed by the acronym in parentheses; the acronym alone may be used thereafter.
Contractions	Contractions are allowed and encouraged (“we’re,” “you’ll”) to keep the voice conversational, except inside formal disclosures and legal text.

Visual Identity Quick Reference

Element	Specification
Primary color	#3A0CA3
Secondary color	#7209B7
Accent color	#F72585
Primary typeface	Archivo Black (headlines/display)
Secondary typeface	Archivo (body/UI copy)
Approved tagline	“Auravue – Do It Right.” – reproduce verbatim, do not paraphrase

Localization Notes

- Translated content must be reviewed by a native-speaking editor, not machine-translated and published directly.
- Idioms and wordplay in the Archivo Black-styled headline system rarely translate – prioritize meaning over literal wording when localizing.
- Currency, date, and measurement formats follow local convention (e.g. DD/MM/YYYY and metric units outside the US) even when the surrounding copy is in English for a US-based CMS.

7. Channel Playbook

Character limits are hard constraints (Section 6 covers the full table); this section covers how to use each channel well within those constraints.

Instagram

Lead visually; caption supports the image rather than repeating it. Best for brand-world content, product detail, and community-facing tone.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

TikTok

Fastest-moving channel – voice can flex slightly more casual here than elsewhere, but restricted words and disclosures still apply in full.

Example (on-brand): > VOICEOVER: ‘At Auravue Beauty, we believe Tech-Forward Gen Z deserve better. That’s why we help you make the smart choice without the sales pitch.’

LinkedIn

Most formal social channel. Use for company milestones, hiring, thought leadership – tone shifts toward “sophisticated” and “reassuring” pillars over “witty” or “edgy” ones.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

Email

Highest-trust, most personal channel. Subject line earns the open; body copy earns the click. Disclosures are never optional here.

Example (on-brand): > Real talk — how Auravue Beauty helps you make the smart choice without the sales pitch

SMS / Push

Shortest attention span, highest interruption cost. One idea per message, always.

Example (on-brand): > Okay, this is exciting! Your Auravue Beauty update is ready — a quick way to make the smart choice without the sales pitch.

Blog / SEO

Longest-form brand voice expression. This is where a voice pillar can be explained, not just demonstrated.

Example (on-brand): > Designed for Tech-Forward Gen Z, this is Auravue Beauty doing what it does best — helping you make the smart choice without the sales pitch, without the noise.

Paid Search / Display

Least room for personality – clarity and compliance outrank cleverness. Every claim needs to survive legal review at 30 characters.

Example (on-brand): > Auravue Beauty: Auravue — Do It Right.

Customer Support

Voice pillars still apply, but empathy and clarity always outrank wit or edge, especially in complaints or errors.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

Channel-Specific Character Limits

Channel	Field	Character Limit	Notes
X / Twitter	Post text	280 characters	Leave room for a link (~23 chars) if sharing one.
Instagram	Caption	2,200 characters (aim for first 125 visible)	Front-load the hook; caption truncates after ~3 lines.
Instagram	Bio	150 characters	One line of value prop + one line of CTA max.
Facebook	Post text	63,206 characters (aim for under 80 for engagement)	Short posts consistently outperform long ones in feed.
LinkedIn	Post text	3,000 characters (aim for under 200 above the fold)	First 2-3 lines show before 'See more' – put the point there.
TikTok	Caption	2,200 characters (aim for under 150)	Hook must land in the first 3 words.
Email	Subject line	60 characters (front-load first 30 for mobile)	Avoid ALL CAPS and more than one exclamation point.
Email	Preview text	90 characters	Must not repeat the subject line verbatim.
SMS / Text	Message body	160 characters (single segment)	Longer messages split into multiple segments and may be billed/delivered separately.
Push Notification	Title	50 characters	Titles longer than this truncate on most Android/iOS lock screens.
Push Notification	Body	150 characters	Lead with the benefit, not the feature.
SEO / Meta	Meta description	155-160 characters	Google truncates beyond this; include the primary keyword early.
Paid Search	Headline (Google Ads)	30 characters per headline	Up to 3 headlines are combined; each must stand alone.
Blog / Web	Page title / H1	60 characters	Keep the brand name out of the title unless it's the subject.

8. Required Disclosures & Disclaimers

Auravue Beauty operates in a category with specific disclosure obligations. The table below defines exactly when a disclosure is required, the approved wording, and where it must appear. Do not paraphrase disclosure text without Legal sign-off.

Content Scenario	Required Disclosure Text	Placement Rule
Any ingredient efficacy claim (e.g. "reduces redness")	"Individual results may vary."	Immediately after the claim, same visual weight as surrounding text.
Influencer or gifted-product posts	"#ad" or "#Auravuepartner" (per current FTC endorsement guidance)	In the first 3 lines of the caption, not buried in a hashtag block at the end.
Before/after imagery	"Unedited. Results after 4 weeks of consistent use."	Overlaid on or directly beneath the image, not just in the caption.

General disclaimer (use when no scenario above applies but a claim is being made): >
"Individual results may vary."

Regional Disclosure Requirements

Region	Requirement
United States	FTC endorsement guidance applies to all gifted/sponsored content: disclose material connections clearly and conspicuously.
European Union	EU Cosmetics Regulation (EC) 1223/2009 applies: ingredient claims must match the product's Cosmetic Product Safety Report on file.
California (Prop 65)	Any product containing a listed substance above threshold requires a Prop 65 warning on packaging and product pages.

9. Crisis & Sensitive-Topic Communication Protocol

Acknowledge fast. Publicly acknowledge any service disruption, error, or complaint pattern within 1 hour, even if the full fix isn't ready. Silence reads worse than an honest "we're on it."

Drop the personality, keep the humanity. Suspend Auravue Beauty's lighter tone pillars (wit, edge, playfulness) during an active incident. Empathy and clarity remain non-negotiable.

One voice, one channel of record. Designate a single channel (usually the status page or a pinned post) as the source of truth; all other channels link back to it rather than repeating varying details.

No speculation. Never guess at root cause, timeline, or blame publicly. State only what is confirmed.

Close the loop. Once resolved, publish a plain-language summary of what happened and what changed – silence after resolution erodes trust as much as silence during the incident.

Legal & Compliance sign-off. Any incident involving data, safety, or regulated claims requires Compliance sign-off before any public statement, even a holding statement.

10. Glossary: Approved Terminology

Quick reference mapping restricted terms to their approved replacements. See Section 5 for the full rationale behind each restriction.

Instead of...	Use...
insane deal	"limited restock," "back in stock"
cheapest	"accessible price point"
risk-free	"patch-test recommended," "gentle formula"
best in the world	cite the specific % active ingredient instead hack	"shortcut," "the one-step version"
clinically proven (without citation)	"in a consumer study of 100 users..." with the study linked dermatologist approved (unqualified)	"reviewed by our dermatology advisory panel" (if true and documented) chemical-free	"free from [specific named ingredient]"
anti-aging (unqualified)	"supports skin elasticity" with cited data guaranteed to work for everyone	"formulated for most skin types; patch test recommended"
toxin-free	name the specific excluded ingredient (e.g. "sulfate-free")
cruelty-free (unless certified)	"certified cruelty-free by [certifying body]" once verified

Appendix A: Machine-Readable Rule Reference

The rules below are the atomic, structured version of Sections 4-8, formatted for ingestion by content-review tooling (human or AI). Each rule maps to a Rule ID for traceability.

Rule ID	Category	Rule Text
RL0289	Logo	Never display the Auravue Beauty logo smaller than 24px digital / 0.5in print; below this size the wordmark becomes illegible.
RL0290	Logo	The Auravue Beauty logo may only appear on backgrounds that meet a minimum 4.5:1 contrast ratio against #3A0CA3.
RL0291	Color	#F72585 is reserved for calls-to-action and small highlight moments — it must never be used as a large background field.
RL0292	Color	#3A0CA3 is the dominant brand color and must anchor at least 60% of any Auravue Beauty visual composition; #7209B7 and #F72585 are supporting colors only.
RL0293	Typography	Archivo Black is used exclusively for headlines and display copy; Archivo is used for all body text and UI copy.
RL0294	Typography	Headline text set in Archivo Black must never fall below 18pt in digital contexts for accessibility.
RL0295	Voice & Tone	Auravue Beauty's voice is edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative. Copy that reads as the opposite of these traits (e.g. cold, generic, or overly formal where warmth is expected) is off-brand.
RL0296	Voice & Tone	Auravue Beauty never talks down to Tech-Forward Gen Z; explain, don't lecture.
RL0297	Messaging	The approved Auravue Beauty tagline is 'Auravue — Do It Right.'. It must be reproduced verbatim — do not paraphrase, translate loosely, or alter punctuation in official materials.
RL0298	Messaging	Auravue Beauty never disparages named competitors by name in public-facing content.
RL0299	Legal & Compliance	Content that makes claims requiring substantiation must include the disclaimer: 'N/A — no regulated claims category'

RL0300	Imagery	Auravue Beauty imagery style is: vibrant, high-saturation lifestyle photography in real-world settings. Stock photography that contradicts this direction should be rejected in creative review.

Appendix B: Worked Examples - Compliant vs. Violation

Real examples of content evaluated against this guidebook, with the reasoning a reviewer (or an AI content-compliance tool) should apply.

Example 1 - Website Hero Copy - Compliant

Auravue — Do It Right. Auravue Beauty exists so Tech-Forward Gen Z can make the smart choice without the sales pitch — nothing more complicated than that.

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0296)

Example 2 - Blog Intro - Compliant

If you've ever wished beauty & cosmetics felt less complicated, you're exactly who Auravue Beauty was built for. Here's how we help you make the smart choice without the sales pitch.

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0295)

Example 3 - Email Subject Line - Compliant

Real talk — how Auravue Beauty helps you make the smart choice without the sales pitch

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0296)

Example 4 - Ad Headline - Compliant

Auravue Beauty: Auravue — Do It Right.

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0295)

Example 5 - Video Ad Script Line - Compliant

VOICEOVER: 'At Auravue Beauty, we believe Tech-Forward Gen Z deserve better. That's why we help you make the smart choice without the sales pitch.'

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0295)

Example 6 - Product Description - Compliant

Designed for Tech-Forward Gen Z, this is Auravue Beauty doing what it does best — helping you make the smart choice without the sales pitch, without the noise.

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0295)

Example 7 - Push Notification - Compliant

Okay, this is exciting! Your Auravue Beauty update is ready — a quick way to make the smart choice without the sales pitch.

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0296)

Example 8 - Press Release Snippet - Compliant

Auravue Beauty today reaffirmed its mission to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to beauty & cosmetics, announcing a new initiative aimed at helping Tech-Forward Gen Z make the smart choice without the sales pitch.

Reasoning: Matches Auravue Beauty's tone (edgy, energetic, bold, authoritative), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0296)

Example 9 - Product Description - Violation (Banned_Word_Usage, High severity)

With Auravue Beauty, you get risk-free performance every time.

Reasoning: Uses the banned word/phrase 'risk-free', which is explicitly prohibited in Auravue Beauty content due to overpromising or legal-risk connotations in the generic category. (Related rule: RL0299)

Example 10 - Email Subject Line - Violation (Competitor_Bashing, High severity)

Unlike [Competitor X], Auravue Beauty actually works — they'll rip you off, we won't.

Reasoning: Auravue Beauty's messaging rules explicitly prohibit disparaging named competitors in public-facing content. (Related rule: RL0298)

Example 11 - Video Ad Script Line - Violation (Font_Substitution, Low severity)

Email template note: headline set in Arial instead of Archivo Black because 'the designer was on PTO and needed a fast fallback'.

Reasoning: Violates the typography rule requiring Archivo Black for headlines and Archivo for body copy; system-font substitution requires design team sign-off, which wasn't obtained. (Related rule: RL0293)

Example 12 - Website Hero Copy - Violation (Logo_Misuse, High severity)

Print flyer proof: body copy overlaps into the logo's clear-space zone because the layout ran long.

Reasoning: Violates Auravue Beauty's logo rules: Maintain clear space equal to the width of the icon on all sides. and a minimum size of 24px digital / 0.5in print. Stretching, adding effects, or recoloring the logo is explicitly prohibited. (Related rule: RL0290)

Example 13 - Blog Intro - Violation (Unsubstantiated_Claim, High severity)

Auravue Beauty products deliver results 3x faster than any alternative on the market.

Reasoning: Makes a comparative performance claim with no substantiation or disclaimer, creating legal exposure even outside a formally regulated category. (Related rule: RL0299)

Example 14 - Press Release Snippet - Violation (Imagery_Mismatch, Low severity)

Ad creative note: stock photo shows a generic handshake in a beige boardroom, which contradicts Auravue Beauty's defined imagery style (vibrant, high-saturation lifestyle photography in real-world settings).

Reasoning: Auravue Beauty's imagery guideline calls for 'vibrant, high-saturation lifestyle photography in real-world settings'. Generic boardroom stock photography contradicts this direction and should be rejected in creative review. (Related rule: RL0300)

Example 15 - Push Notification - Violation (Tagline_Alteration, Medium severity)

Auravue Beauty: Auravue — Do It Right — every single time, guaranteed!

Reasoning: The approved tagline 'Auravue — Do It Right.' has been altered with added words and punctuation. Taglines must be reproduced verbatim in official materials, not paraphrased or embellished. (Related rule: RL0297)

Example 16 - Social Media Post - Violation (Color_Misuse, Medium severity)

Sales deck note: team swapped in an unapproved teal (#14B8A6) instead of #7209B7 because 'it looked nicer on this slide'.

Reasoning: Breaks Auravue Beauty's color rules: #3A0CA3 must anchor at least 60% of any composition, and #F72585 is reserved for small CTA moments, not large background fields. Introducing unapproved colors is also prohibited. (Related rule: RL0292)

11. Review, Approval & Escalation

Role	Name	Responsibility	Contact
Brand Owner	Maya Larsson	Final sign-off on voice/tone and visual identity questions	maya.larsson@auravuebeauty.com
Compliance Reviewer	Jordan Reyes	Reviews all regulated-claim and disclosure content	jordan.reyes@auravuebeauty.com
Content Lead	Andre Kowalski	First-line review for channel formatting and restricted words	andre.kowalski@auravuebeauty.com

Escalation path: Content Lead review → Compliance review (required for any claim, disclosure, or restricted-word edge case) → Brand Owner sign-off for anything setting new precedent.
