Nova Fitness Collective

Brand Voice & Content Guidebook

Version: 2.6 | Effective date: January 26, 2026

Document owner: Owen Kowalski, Head of Creative Operations

Department: Brand & Marketing | Contact: owen.kowalski@novafitnesscollective.com

Industry: Fitness & Wellness | Brand archetype: Jester

1. About This Guidebook

Purpose. This guidebook defines how Nova Fitness Collective sounds, what language is off-limits, how content must be formatted for each channel, and which legal disclosures are required before publishing. It applies to every employee, agency, freelancer, and AI tool producing customer-facing content on Nova Fitness Collective’s behalf.

Mission. Our mission is to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to fitness, coaching small business owners through sustainable training instead of quick fixes.

Who this is for: Marketing, Content, Social, Customer Support, Legal & Compliance review, and any external agency or contractor producing Nova Fitness Collective content.

Scope: Applies to all channels – social, email, SMS, push, web, paid media, and customer support – across every market Nova Fitness Collective operates in.

How to use this document: Sections 2-3 define how we sound. Sections 4-6 define what’s off-limits and how content must be formatted. Section 7 is a channel-by-channel playbook. Sections 8-9 cover legal disclosures and crisis protocol. Appendices A and B are a machine-readable rule set and worked examples, useful for training reviewers (human or automated) on real compliant vs. non-compliant content.

Revision History

Version	Date	Author	Summary of Changes
2.6	January 26, 2026	Owen Kowalski	Current version – full guidebook consolidation, added crisis protocol and regional disclosure appendix.
1.0	March 10, 2025	Andre Petrov	Added channel-specific character limits and updated restricted word list.
0.1	November 3, 2024	Andre Petrov	Initial draft circulated for stakeholder review.

2. Brand Foundations

Brand Story

Nova started as a single studio run by a coach who got tired of clients quitting six-week programs the moment the 'transformation' plateaued. The studio's whole philosophy – consistency over intensity, honesty over hype – became the voice of the app when it launched three years later.

Positioning Statement

For small business owners squeezing fitness into an already-full schedule, Nova is the training app that respects your time and your intelligence – unlike programs that promise dramatic results in impossible timelines.

Competitive Differentiation

Most fitness marketing sells transformation fantasies. Nova sells 20 realistic minutes and a coach's voice that sounds like it actually knows you skipped leg day.

Audience Personas

Theo, 41 – Runs a 6-person accounting firm

- Goals: Fit in real training without sacrificing an evening or a Saturday.
- Frustrations: Programs that assume 90 minutes a day and zero work stress.
- Primary channels: Push notifications, app, email

Camille, 35 – Owns a bakery, on her feet all day

- Goals: Build strength without adding more standing time.
- Frustrations: Generic programs that ignore that she's already physically active at work.
- Primary channels: Instagram, in-app messaging

3. Messaging Pillars & Tagline Library

Messaging Pillars

Consistency over intensity. We coach toward showing up, not toward unsustainable extremes. > “20 minutes today beats 90 minutes you’ll dread tomorrow.”

Respect the schedule. Every program acknowledges the reader has a full life outside the app. > “Built for the 20 minutes you actually have, not the 90 you wish you had.”

Honesty over hype. We don’t promise outcomes we can’t back up. > “This won’t transform your life in a week. It’ll make Tuesday’s stairs easier by week three.”

Approved Tagline Variations

Context	Approved Line
Primary / brand	Nova – Do It Right.
App store listing	Real training for a real schedule.
Referral program	The workout your calendar can actually keep.
B2B wellness partnership deck	The fitness benefit your team will actually use.

Taglines must be reproduced verbatim for the context listed. Do not mix and match phrases between variants, and do not create new tagline variants without Brand Owner sign-off.

4. Brand Voice & Tone

Nova Fitness Collective's voice is energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear. These traits should be recognizable in every piece of content, regardless of channel or author.

Energetic

Copy should feel like a good coach: upbeat, forward-moving, never a lecture.

Do	Don't
"20 minutes. Real progress. Let's move."	"Users are encouraged to engage in physical activity regularly."

Warm

We root for people, including on the days they don't show up.

Do	Don't
"Missed yesterday's session? No lecture here – let's just get today's rep in."	"You failed to complete your scheduled workout."

Witty

A little humor is welcome, especially in app copy and social – never in injury or safety content.

Do	Don't
"Your hamstrings just filed a complaint. Stretch, please."	"WARNING: FAILURE TO STRETCH MAY RESULT IN INJURY." as a casual app tip

Technical-but-clear

We use real training terminology, always with a plain-language anchor.

Do	Don't
"RPE (Rate of Perceived Exertion) – basically, how hard did that feel, 1 to 10?"	"Target RPE: 7-8." with no explanation on first use

Tone by Context

Context	Tone Adjustment
Marketing & social	Full voice expression – lead with personality within the pillars above.
Transactional (receipts, confirmations)	Warm but efficient; clarity outranks personality here.
Customer support (routine)	Calm, helpful, human – avoid scripted-sounding phrases.
Customer support (complaints or errors)	Extra empathy, zero humor, always a clear next step.
Legal, disclosures, and compliance copy	Neutral and precise; voice pillars do not override legal accuracy.

Before & After: Applying the Voice

Missed-workout nudge

Generic (off-brand)	Nova Fitness Collective voice
You have not completed your scheduled workout. Please log your activity.	Yesterday got away from you – happens to everyone. Today’s 20 minutes are ready whenever you are.

Program completion message

Generic (off-brand)	Nova Fitness Collective voice
Congratulations on completing your 8-week program.	8 weeks, done. However this went for you, you showed up more than the version of you who never started.

Upsell to coaching tier

Generic (off-brand)	Nova Fitness Collective voice
Upgrade now to unlock premium coaching features and personalized plans.	Want a coach checking your form and adjusting your plan weekly? Here’s what that upgrade actually includes.

5. Restricted & Prohibited Language

The words and phrases below are banned in all Nova Fitness Collective customer-facing content. If a word isn't listed here but feels like it violates the spirit of this list (hype, unsubstantiated claims, or off-tone language), escalate to Brand or Legal before publishing.

Restricted Term	Category	Why It's Restricted	Use Instead
guaranteed	Unsubstantiated fitness-outcome claim	Individual fitness results depend on many factors we can't guarantee.	"designed to help you build," "many members see"
miracle	Unsubstantiated claim	No fitness program is a miracle; undermines the brand's honesty positioning.	"a program that actually works when you show up"
cheapest	Devalues coaching expertise	Positions expert coaching as a commodity.	"affordable coaching," "plans that fit your budget"
cheap	Brand-tone violation	Same issue as "cheapest" – undercuts the craftsmanship positioning.	"accessible," "budget-friendly" revolutionary (overused)	Diluted superlative	Overused hype word; the brand voice earns credibility through specifics, not adjectives.	"a different approach to," or name the specific mechanism transform your body in X days	Unsubstantiated claim	Timelines like this are not substantiated and set unrealistic expectations.	"build noticeable strength over consistent weeks"
burn fat fast	Unsubstantiated / oversimplified claim	Fat loss physiology is more complex than any single program can promise.	"support a calorie deficit through consistent training"
no pain no gain	Brand-tone violation / safety risk	Contradicts Nova's injury-conscious, sustainable-training philosophy.	"consistent effort, not maximum pain"
shred / shredded (in marketing copy)	Brand-tone / unsubstantiated	Reads as hype rather than the brand's honest, coach-like tone.	describe the specific training goal instead guaranteed six-pack	Unsubstantiated claim	Visible abdominal muscle depends on factors outside any program's control (body fat %, genetics).	"a program that trains your core consistently"

General Principles (for anything not explicitly listed)

1. No unsubstantiated superlatives ("best," "#1," "revolutionary") without a citable source on file with Legal.
2. No absolute guarantees of outcome, result, or performance – individual results vary and must be described that way.
3. No manufactured urgency ("only hours left," "prices going up forever") unless the constraint is real and verifiable.

4. No borrowed authority (implying a certification, endorsement, or approval that hasn't been formally granted and documented).

6. Formatting Standards

Standard	Rule
Capitalization	Sentence case for headlines, buttons, and subject lines (capitalize only the first word and proper nouns). Do not use Title Case or ALL CAPS except for the brand wordmark itself.
Oxford comma	Always used in lists of three or more items: “colors, fonts, and tone” – not “colors, fonts and tone.”
Numbers	Spell out one through nine in body copy; use numerals for 10 and above, all statistics, and all measurements (e.g. “3 steps,” “nine reasons,” “24/7”).
Dates	Write dates as Month D, YYYY (e.g. “July 2, 2026”) in body copy; MM/DD/YYYY is permitted only in dense UI tables.
Emoji usage	Emoji are welcome in social and push copy (max 2 per post) to reinforce tone – never in formal emails, legal copy, or disclosures.
Hashtags	Maximum 3 hashtags per social post, placed at the end of the caption, never inline in a sentence. The branded hashtag comes first.
Links & CTAs	Buttons and links use an active verb + outcome (“Start your plan,” not “Click here” or “Learn more”). Never use a bare URL in body copy on channels that support link text.
Accessibility	Every image in customer-facing content must ship with descriptive alt text (not “image of...”); every video must include captions before publishing.
Acronyms	Spell out any acronym on first use per document/page, followed by the acronym in parentheses; the acronym alone may be used thereafter.
Contractions	Contractions are allowed and encouraged (“we’re,” “you’ll”) to keep the voice conversational, except inside formal disclosures and legal text.

Visual Identity Quick Reference

Element	Specification
Primary color	#22333B
Secondary color	#EAE0D5
Accent color	#C6AC8F
Primary typeface	Space Grotesk (headlines/display)
Secondary typeface	Work Sans (body/UI copy)
Approved tagline	“Nova – Do It Right.” – reproduce verbatim, do not paraphrase

Localization Notes

- Translated content must be reviewed by a native-speaking editor, not machine-translated and published directly.
- Idioms and wordplay in the Space Grotesk-styled headline system rarely translate – prioritize meaning over literal wording when localizing.
- Currency, date, and measurement formats follow local convention (e.g. DD/MM/YYYY and metric units outside the US) even when the surrounding copy is in English for a US-based CMS.

7. Channel Playbook

Character limits are hard constraints (Section 6 covers the full table); this section covers how to use each channel well within those constraints.

Instagram

Lead visually; caption supports the image rather than repeating it. Best for brand-world content, product detail, and community-facing tone.

Example (on-brand): > Hey — meet the Nova Fitness Collective way to spend less time worrying about the details. Nova — Do It Right. #Nova Fastest-moving channel – voice can flex slightly more casual here than elsewhere, but restricted words and disclosures still apply in full.

TikTok

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

LinkedIn

Most formal social channel. Use for company milestones, hiring, thought leadership – tone shifts toward “sophisticated” and “reassuring” pillars over “witty” or “edgy” ones.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

Email

Highest-trust, most personal channel. Subject line earns the open; body copy earns the click. Disclosures are never optional here.

Example (on-brand): > Okay, this is exciting — how Nova Fitness Collective helps you spend less time worrying about the details

SMS / Push

Shortest attention span, highest interruption cost. One idea per message, always.

Example (on-brand): > Quick one for you! Your Nova Fitness Collective update is ready — a quick way to spend less time worrying about the details.

Blog / SEO

Longest-form brand voice expression. This is where a voice pillar can be explained, not just demonstrated.

Example (on-brand): > Nova Fitness Collective today reaffirmed its mission to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to fitness & wellness, announcing a new initiative aimed at helping Small Business Owners spend less time worrying about the details.

Paid Search / Display

Least room for personality – clarity and compliance outrank cleverness. Every claim needs to survive legal review at 30 characters.

Example (on-brand): > Nova Fitness Collective: Nova — Do It Right.

Customer Support

Voice pillars still apply, but empathy and clarity always outrank wit or edge, especially in complaints or errors.

Example (on-brand): > Thanks for reaching out! We hear you, and we're on it — Nova Fitness Collective's here to make sure you spend less time worrying about the details. We'll follow up within one business day.

Channel-Specific Character Limits

Channel	Field	Character Limit	Notes
X / Twitter	Post text	280 characters	Leave room for a link (~23 chars) if sharing one.
Instagram	Caption	2,200 characters (aim for first 125 visible)	Front-load the hook; caption truncates after ~3 lines.
Instagram	Bio	150 characters	One line of value prop + one line of CTA max.
Facebook	Post text	63,206 characters (aim for under 80 for engagement)	Short posts consistently outperform long ones in feed.
LinkedIn	Post text	3,000 characters (aim for under 200 above the fold)	First 2-3 lines show before 'See more' – put the point there.
TikTok	Caption	2,200 characters (aim for under 150)	Hook must land in the first 3 words.
Email	Subject line	60 characters (front-load first 30 for mobile)	Avoid ALL CAPS and more than one exclamation point.
Email	Preview text	90 characters	Must not repeat the subject line verbatim.
SMS / Text	Message body	160 characters (single segment)	Longer messages split into multiple segments and may be billed/delivered separately.
Push Notification	Title	50 characters	Titles longer than this truncate on most Android/iOS lock screens.
Push Notification	Body	150 characters	Lead with the benefit, not the feature.
SEO / Meta	Meta description	155-160 characters	Google truncates beyond this; include the primary keyword early.
Paid Search	Headline (Google Ads)	30 characters per headline	Up to 3 headlines are combined; each must stand alone.
Blog / Web	Page title / H1	60 characters	Keep the brand name out of the title unless it's the subject.

8. Required Disclosures & Disclaimers

Nova Fitness Collective operates in a category with specific disclosure obligations. The table below defines exactly when a disclosure is required, the approved wording, and where it must appear. Do not paraphrase disclosure text without Legal sign-off.

Content Scenario	Required Disclosure Text	Placement Rule
Any content describing a physical outcome (weight, strength, endurance change)	"Results may vary based on individual effort, starting point, and consistency."	Directly below the claim or testimonial.
Member transformation posts	"[Name] followed a personalized program; individual results are not guaranteed."	In the caption, not only in a linked bio.

General disclaimer (use when no scenario above applies but a claim is being made): >
"Results may vary based on individual effort, starting point, and consistency."

Regional Disclosure Requirements

Region	Requirement
United States	FTC guidance on fitness testimonials applies: include a disclaimer that results are not typical unless substantiated by data.
General / all markets	Any program change or new movement should include: "Consult a physician before beginning any new exercise program."

9. Crisis & Sensitive-Topic Communication Protocol

Acknowledge fast. Publicly acknowledge any service disruption, error, or complaint pattern within 1 hour, even if the full fix isn't ready. Silence reads worse than an honest "we're on it."

Drop the personality, keep the humanity. Suspend Nova Fitness Collective's lighter tone pillars (wit, edge, playfulness) during an active incident. Empathy and clarity remain non-negotiable.

One voice, one channel of record. Designate a single channel (usually the status page or a pinned post) as the source of truth; all other channels link back to it rather than repeating varying details.

No speculation. Never guess at root cause, timeline, or blame publicly. State only what is confirmed.

Close the loop. Once resolved, publish a plain-language summary of what happened and what changed – silence after resolution erodes trust as much as silence during the incident.

Legal & Compliance sign-off. Any incident involving data, safety, or regulated claims requires Compliance sign-off before any public statement, even a holding statement.

10. Glossary: Approved Terminology

Quick reference mapping restricted terms to their approved replacements. See Section 5 for the full rationale behind each restriction.

Instead of...	Use...
guaranteed	"designed to help you build," "many members see"
miracle	"a program that actually works when you show up"
cheapest	"affordable coaching," "plans that fit your budget"
cheap	"accessible," "budget-friendly"
revolutionary (overused)	"a different approach to," or name the specific mechanism transform your body in X days	"build noticeable strength over consistent weeks"
burn fat fast	"support a calorie deficit through consistent training"
no pain no gain	"consistent effort, not maximum pain"
shred / shredded (in marketing copy)	describe the specific training goal instead guaranteed six-pack	"a program that trains your core consistently"

Appendix A: Machine-Readable Rule Reference

The rules below are the atomic, structured version of Sections 4-8, formatted for ingestion by content-review tooling (human or AI). Each rule maps to a Rule ID for traceability.

Rule ID	Category	Rule Text
RL0001	Logo	The Nova Fitness Collective logo may only appear on backgrounds that meet a minimum 4.5:1 contrast ratio against #22333B.
RL0002	Logo	The Nova Fitness Collective logo must always maintain clear space equal to the width of the icon on all sides; no text, imagery, or UI elements may intrude on this zone.
RL0003	Color	#C6AC8F is reserved for calls-to-action and small highlight moments — it must never be used as a large background field.
RL0004	Color	#22333B is the dominant brand color and must anchor at least 60% of any Nova Fitness Collective visual composition; #EAE0D5 and #C6AC8F are supporting colors only.
RL0005	Typography	Space Grotesk is used exclusively for headlines and display copy; Work Sans is used for all body text and UI copy.
RL0006	Typography	Never substitute a system font for Space Grotesk or Work Sans in customer-facing materials without design team sign-off.
RL0007	Voice & Tone	Nova Fitness Collective's voice is energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear. Copy that reads as the opposite of these traits (e.g. cold, generic, or overly formal where warmth is expected) is off-brand.
RL0008	Voice & Tone	Every piece of Nova Fitness Collective copy should sound like it could only come from Nova Fitness Collective — avoid generic category language that any competitor could use verbatim.
RL0009	Messaging	Nova Fitness Collective never disparages named competitors by name in public-facing content.
RL0010	Messaging	All Nova Fitness Collective messaging must tie back to the mission: Our mission is to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to fitness & wellness.
RL0011	Legal & Compliance	Content that makes claims

RL0011	Legal & Compliance	Content that makes claims requiring substantiation must include the disclaimer: 'N/A — no regulated claims category'
RL0012	Imagery	Nova Fitness Collective imagery style is: bright, natural light with candid human moments — no stock-photo stiffness. Stock photography that contradicts this direction should be rejected in creative review.

Appendix B: Worked Examples - Compliant vs. Violation

Real examples of content evaluated against this guidebook, with the reasoning a reviewer (or an AI content-compliance tool) should apply.

Example 1 - Website Hero Copy - Compliant

Nova — Do It Right. Nova Fitness Collective exists so Small Business Owners can spend less time worrying about the details — nothing more complicated than that.

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0007)

Example 2 - Press Release Snippet - Compliant

Nova Fitness Collective today reaffirmed its mission to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to fitness & wellness, announcing a new initiative aimed at helping Small Business Owners spend less time worrying about the details.

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0007)

Example 3 - Blog Intro - Compliant

If you've ever wished fitness & wellness felt less complicated, you're exactly who Nova Fitness Collective was built for. Here's how we help you spend less time worrying about the details.

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0008)

Example 4 - Push Notification - Compliant

Quick one for you! Your Nova Fitness Collective update is ready — a quick way to spend less time worrying about the details.

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0008)

Example 5 - Social Media Post - Compliant

*Hey — meet the Nova Fitness Collective way to spend less time worrying about the details.
Nova — Do It Right. #Nova*

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0008)

Example 6 - Email Subject Line - Compliant

Okay, this is exciting — how Nova Fitness Collective helps you spend less time worrying about the details

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0008)

Example 7 - Ad Headline - Compliant

Nova Fitness Collective: Nova — Do It Right.

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0008)

Example 8 - Customer Support Reply - Compliant

Thanks for reaching out! We hear you, and we're on it — Nova Fitness Collective's here to make sure you spend less time worrying about the details. We'll follow up within one business day.

Reasoning: Matches Nova Fitness Collective's tone (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0007)

Example 9 - Push Notification - Violation (Competitor_Bashing, High severity)

Unlike [Competitor X], Nova Fitness Collective actually works — they'll rip you off, we won't.

Reasoning: Nova Fitness Collective's messaging rules explicitly prohibit disparaging named competitors in public-facing content. (Related rule: RL0009)

Example 10 - Video Ad Script Line - Violation (Off_Mission_Messaging, High severity)

Nova Fitness Collective is expanding into flash-sale daily deals with rotating discounts on unrelated third-party products.

Reasoning: This contradicts Nova Fitness Collective's stated mission ('Our mission is to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to fitness & wellness.') and its positioning as a Jester archetype brand. All messaging must tie back to the mission. (Related rule: RL0009)

Example 11 - Social Media Post - Violation (Tagline_Alteration, Medium severity)

Nova Fitness Collective: Nova — Do It Right — every single time, guaranteed!

Reasoning: The approved tagline ‘Nova — Do It Right.’ has been altered with added words and punctuation. Taglines must be reproduced verbatim in official materials, not paraphrased or embellished. (Related rule: RL0009)

Example 12 - Email Subject Line - Violation (Tone_Mismatch, Medium severity)

NOTICE: Nova Fitness Collective Product Update — Action Required

Reasoning: This copy reads cold, corporate, and generic — the opposite of Nova Fitness Collective’s defined voice (energetic, warm, witty, technical-but-clear). It could belong to any brand, which directly breaks the rule that copy should be recognizably Nova Fitness Collective’s and reflect its tone attributes. (Related rule: RL0008)

Example 13 - Ad Headline - Violation (Banned_Word_Usage, High severity)

Nova Fitness Collective: The guaranteed option, guaranteed results.

Reasoning: Uses the banned word/phrase ‘guaranteed’, which is explicitly prohibited in Nova Fitness Collective content due to overpromising or legal-risk connotations in the generic category. (Related rule: RL0011)

Example 14 - Customer Support Reply - Violation (Font_Substitution, Low severity)

Email template note: headline set in Arial instead of Space Grotesk because ‘the designer was on PTO and needed a fast fallback’.

Reasoning: Violates the typography rule requiring Space Grotesk for headlines and Work Sans for body copy; system-font substitution requires design team sign-off, which wasn’t obtained. (Related rule: RL0005)

Example 15 - Website Hero Copy - Violation (Logo_Misuse, High severity)

Trade show banner mockup: logo recolored in a gradient to match the venue’s lighting theme.

Reasoning: Violates Nova Fitness Collective’s logo rules: Maintain clear space equal to the width of the icon on all sides. and a minimum size of 24px digital / 0.5in print. Stretching, adding effects, or recoloring the logo is explicitly prohibited. (Related rule: RL0002)

Example 16 - Product Description - Violation (Color_Misuse, Medium severity)

Landing page mockup note: hero section background is filled edge-to-edge in #C6AC8F (the reserved CTA accent), pushing #22333B out of the composition entirely.

Reasoning: Breaks Nova Fitness Collective’s color rules: #22333B must anchor at least 60% of any composition, and #C6AC8F is reserved for small CTA moments, not large background fields.

Introducing unapproved colors is also prohibited. (Related rule: RL0004)

11. Review, Approval & Escalation

Role	Name	Responsibility	Contact
