

Table of Contents

Solace Health

Brand Voice & Content Guidebook

1. About This Guidebook

2. Brand Foundations

3. Messaging Pillars & Tagline Library

4. Brand Voice & Tone

5. Restricted & Prohibited Language

6. Formatting Standards

7. Channel Playbook

8. Required Disclosures & Disclaimers

9. Crisis & Sensitive-Topic Communication Protocol

10. Glossary: Approved Terminology

Appendix A: Machine-Readable Rule Reference

Appendix B: Worked Examples – Compliant vs. Violation

11. Review, Approval & Escalation

Solace Health

Brand Voice & Content Guidebook

Version: 1.9 | Effective date: January 7, 2026

Document owner: Renee Petrov, Chief Marketing Officer

Department: Creative Operations | Contact: renee.petrov@solacehealth.com

Industry: Digital Healthcare | Brand archetype: Caregiver

1. About This Guidebook

Purpose. This guidebook defines how Solace Health sounds, what language is off-limits, how content must be formatted for each channel, and which legal disclosures are required before publishing. It applies to every employee, agency, freelancer, and AI tool producing customer-facing content on Solace Health’s behalf.

Mission. Our mission is to bring honesty and clarity back to digital healthcare, so people feel informed rather than alarmed.

Who this is for: Marketing, Content, Social, Customer Support, Legal & Compliance review, and any external agency or contractor producing Solace Health content.

Scope: Applies to all channels – social, email, SMS, push, web, paid media, and customer support – across every market Solace Health operates in.

How to use this document: Sections 2-3 define how we sound. Sections 4-6 define what’s off-limits and how content must be formatted. Section 7 is a channel-by-channel playbook. Sections 8-9 cover legal disclosures and crisis protocol. Appendices A and B are a machine-readable rule set and worked examples, useful for training reviewers (human or automated) on real compliant vs. non-compliant content.

Revision History

Version	Date	Author	Summary of Changes
1.9	January 7, 2026	Renee Petrov	Current version – full guidebook consolidation, added crisis protocol and regional disclosure appendix.
1.0	March 20, 2025	Marcus Osei	Added channel-specific character limits and updated restricted word list.
0.1	November 3, 2024	Marcus Osei	Initial draft circulated for stakeholder review.

2. Brand Foundations

Brand Story

Solace Health started as a side project between two nurses frustrated by how confusing portal messages and lab results were for patients. The founding team's rule was simple: if a message would confuse your own mother, rewrite it. That rule still governs every piece of content the brand publishes.

Positioning Statement

For busy people who feel lost in their own healthcare, Solace Health is the digital health platform that translates medical complexity into plain, honest language – unlike portals that just hand you a PDF and a phone number.

Competitive Differentiation

Where most healthcare apps default to clinical hedging and legal-safe vagueness, Solace Health leads with candor: we tell people what we know, what we don't, and exactly what happens next. Warmth is not a tagline here – it's a writing rule.

Audience Personas

Dana, 34 – Marketing manager, first-time parent

- Goals: Get quick, trustworthy answers between meetings without a 45-minute portal hunt.
- Frustrations: Medical jargon, being told to 'consult her doctor' with no other detail.
- Primary channels: Push notifications, in-app messages, email

Marcus, 61 – Managing a chronic condition post-retirement

- Goals: Understand trends in his numbers over time without a data science degree.
- Frustrations: Tiny text, inconsistent terminology between visits.
- Primary channels: Email, printed after-visit summaries, phone support

3. Messaging Pillars & Tagline Library

Messaging Pillars

Clarity over comprehensiveness. We’d rather say one true, useful thing clearly than ten hedged things vaguely. > “Your cholesterol is a little high. Here’s the one change that matters most right now.”

Partnership, not paternalism. We talk with people about their health, not at them. > “Let’s figure out what’s next together.”

Radical plain language. Every clinical term is translated the first time it’s used. > “Your provider ordered an A1C (a 3-month blood sugar average).”

Approved Tagline Variations

Context	Approved Line
Primary / brand	Solace - Do It Right.
App store listing	Healthcare that finally makes sense.
Email signature line	Solace Health - clarity, not just care.
Internal / employer partnerships deck	The benefit your employees will actually use.

Taglines must be reproduced verbatim for the context listed. Do not mix and match phrases between variants, and do not create new tagline variants without Brand Owner sign-off.

4. Brand Voice & Tone

Solace Health’s voice is empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring. These traits should be recognizable in every piece of content, regardless of channel or author.

Empathetic

We acknowledge that health concerns are personal and often stressful before we get to the facts.

Do	Don't
"That sounds stressful – here's what we can do together."	"Please see below for symptom protocol."

Candid

We say what we know and clearly flag what we don't, instead of hedging with vague reassurance.

Do	Don't
"This result is within normal range, but a specialist should confirm."	"Nothing to worry about, probably!"

Inclusive

We write for people of all health literacy levels – no jargon without a plain-language explanation.

Do	Don't
"Your A1C (a 3-month blood sugar average) is trending down."	"Your A1C is improving." (no explanation given)

Reassuring

We close every difficult message with a clear, calm next step – never leave someone hanging.

Do	Don't
"Here's exactly what happens next, step by step."	"A provider will be in touch at some point."

Tone by Context

Context	Tone Adjustment
Marketing & social	Full voice expression – lead with personality within the pillars above.
Transactional (receipts, confirmations)	Warm but efficient; clarity outranks personality here.
Customer support (routine)	Calm, helpful, human – avoid scripted-sounding phrases.
Customer support (complaints or errors)	Extra empathy, zero humor, always a clear next step.
Legal, disclosures, and compliance copy	Neutral and precise; voice pillars do not override legal accuracy.

Before & After: Applying the Voice

Lab result notification

Generic (off-brand)	Solace Health voice
Your test results are now available. Please log in to view them.	Your results are in – and they look good. Log in for the full picture, or tap here for the 30-second summary.

Appointment reminder

Generic (off-brand)	Solace Health voice
This is a reminder of your upcoming appointment on the date and time listed below.	See you Thursday at 2pm with Dr. Alvarez. Running behind? Just reply here and we'll let her know.

Billing notice

Generic (off-brand)	Solace Health voice
A balance is due on your account. Please remit payment to avoid service interruption.	You've got a balance of $42 on your account – here's the breakdown, and three ways to pay whenever works for you.

5. Restricted & Prohibited Language

The words and phrases below are banned in all Solace Health customer-facing content. If a word isn't listed here but feels like it violates the spirit of this list (hype, unsubstantiated claims, or off-tone language), escalate to Brand or Legal before publishing.

Restricted Term	Category	Why It's Restricted	Use Instead
cure	Medical claim risk	Implies guaranteed medical outcomes we cannot promise.	"may help manage," "is designed to support"
guaranteed results	Medical claim risk	No health outcome can be guaranteed for an individual.	"many members report," "clinically studied to help"
FDA-approved (unverified)	Regulatory / legal risk	Only use FDA terminology if legal has verified current clearance status for that exact product.	"cleared for [specific use]" only after legal sign-off best in the world	Unsubstantiated superlative	Not a verifiable or substantiated claim.	"one of the ways we help," or a specific, cited stat
cheap	Devalues the offering; also a banned brand-tone word	Positions healthcare as a discount commodity, which undermines trust.	"affordable," "accessible pricing"
diagnose / diagnosis (in marketing copy)	Scope-of-practice risk	Only licensed clinicians in a clinical encounter may diagnose; marketing copy must not imply the product diagnoses.	"helps you understand your symptoms," "screening tool"
miracle	Medical claim risk	No treatment is a miracle; this is a classic FTC/FDA red flag phrase.	"a treatment option that's helped many members"
100% safe	Unsubstantiated safety claim	No medical product or service can claim zero risk.	"generally well-tolerated," "reviewed by our clinical team"
instant relief	Unsubstantiated claim	Implies an immediate guaranteed outcome we can't promise.	"fast-acting," with timeframe data if available painless	Unsubstantiated claim	Pain tolerance varies; absolute claims invite complaints and legal risk.	"designed to minimize discomfort" addiction-free / non-addictive (unqualified)	Regulatory risk	Requires clinical substantiation on file before use.	cite the specific study or omit the claim doctor recommended (unqualified)	Substantiation risk	Must name the specific study, panel, or number of doctors surveyed.	"recommended by our clinical advisory board of licensed physicians"
risk-free trial	Regulatory / brand-tone risk	Combines two red-flag terms; healthcare trials still carry inherent risk.	"free 14-day trial, cancel anytime"
all-natural (unqualified)	FTC substantiation risk	Requires ingredient-level	list the specific substantiation.	ingredients instead

--	--	-----------------	---------------------

General Principles (for anything not explicitly listed)

- 1. No unsubstantiated superlatives (“best,” “#1,” “revolutionary”) without a citable source on file with Legal.
- 2. No absolute guarantees of outcome, result, or performance – individual results vary and must be described that way.
- 3. No manufactured urgency (“only hours left,” “prices going up forever”) unless the constraint is real and verifiable.
- 4. No borrowed authority (implying a certification, endorsement, or approval that hasn’t been formally granted and documented).

6. Formatting Standards

Standard	Rule
Capitalization	Sentence case for headlines, buttons, and subject lines (capitalize only the first word and proper nouns). Do not use Title Case or ALL CAPS except for the brand wordmark itself.
Oxford comma	Always used in lists of three or more items: “colors, fonts, and tone” – not “colors, fonts and tone.”
Numbers	Spell out one through nine in body copy; use numerals for 10 and above, all statistics, and all measurements (e.g. “3 steps,” “nine reasons,” “24/7”).
Dates	Write dates as Month D, YYYY (e.g. “July 2, 2026”) in body copy; MM/DD/YYYY is permitted only in dense UI tables.
Emoji usage	Emoji are not used in any Solace Health content, including social. The brand voice communicates warmth and energy through word choice, not iconography.
Hashtags	Maximum 3 hashtags per social post, placed at the end of the caption, never inline in a sentence. The branded hashtag comes first.
Links & CTAs	Buttons and links use an active verb + outcome (“Start your plan,” not “Click here” or “Learn more”). Never use a bare URL in body copy on channels that support link text.
Accessibility	Every image in customer-facing content must ship with descriptive alt text (not “image of...”); every video must include captions before publishing.
Acronyms	Spell out any acronym on first use per document/page, followed by the acronym in parentheses; the acronym alone may be used thereafter.
Contractions	Contractions are allowed and encouraged (“we’re,” “you’ll”) to keep the voice conversational, except inside formal disclosures and legal text.

Visual Identity Quick Reference

Element	Specification
Primary color	#03045E
Secondary color	#00B4D8
Accent color	#CAF0F8
Primary typeface	Clash Display (headlines/display)
Secondary typeface	Satoshi (body/UI copy)
Approved tagline	“Solace – Do It Right.” – reproduce verbatim, do not paraphrase

Localization Notes

- Translated content must be reviewed by a native-speaking editor, not machine-translated and published directly.
- Idioms and wordplay in the Clash Display-styled headline system rarely translate – prioritize meaning over literal wording when localizing.
- Currency, date, and measurement formats follow local convention (e.g. DD/MM/YYYY and metric units outside the US) even when the surrounding copy is in English for a US-based CMS.

7. Channel Playbook

Character limits are hard constraints (Section 6 covers the full table); this section covers how to use each channel well within those constraints.

Instagram

Lead visually; caption supports the image rather than repeating it. Best for brand-world content, product detail, and community-facing tone.

Example (on-brand): > Hey — meet the Solace Health way to get more done with less hassle. Solace — Do It Right. #Solace

TikTok

Fastest-moving channel – voice can flex slightly more casual here than elsewhere, but restricted words and disclosures still apply in full.

Example (on-brand): > VOICEOVER: ‘At Solace Health, we believe Urban Commuters deserve better. That’s why we help you get more done with less hassle.’

LinkedIn

Most formal social channel. Use for company milestones, hiring, thought leadership – tone shifts toward “sophisticated” and “reassuring” pillars over “witty” or “edgy” ones.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

Email

Highest-trust, most personal channel. Subject line earns the open; body copy earns the click. Disclosures are never optional here.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

SMS / Push

Shortest attention span, highest interruption cost. One idea per message, always.

Example (on-brand): > Hey! Your Solace Health update is ready — a quick way to get more done with less hassle.

Blog / SEO

Longest-form brand voice expression. This is where a voice pillar can be explained, not just demonstrated.

Example (on-brand): > Designed for Urban Commuters, this is Solace Health doing what it does best — helping you get more done with less hassle, without the noise.

Paid Search / Display

Least room for personality – clarity and compliance outrank cleverness. Every claim needs to survive legal review at 30 characters.

Example (on-brand): > Solace Health: Solace — Do It Right.

Customer Support

Voice pillars still apply, but empathy and clarity always outrank wit or edge, especially in complaints or errors.

Example (on-brand): > (see brand voice section for tone reference)

Channel-Specific Character Limits

Channel	Field	Character Limit	Notes
X / Twitter	Post text	280 characters	Leave room for a link (~23 chars) if sharing one.
Instagram	Caption	2,200 characters (aim for first 125 visible)	Front-load the hook; caption truncates after ~3 lines.
Instagram	Bio	150 characters	One line of value prop + one line of CTA max.
Facebook	Post text	63,206 characters (aim for under 80 for engagement)	Short posts consistently outperform long ones in feed.
LinkedIn	Post text	3,000 characters (aim for under 200 above the fold)	First 2-3 lines show before 'See more' – put the point there.
TikTok	Caption	2,200 characters (aim for under 150)	Hook must land in the first 3 words.
Email	Subject line	60 characters (front-load first 30 for mobile)	Avoid ALL CAPS and more than one exclamation point.
Email	Preview text	90 characters	Must not repeat the subject line verbatim.
SMS / Text	Message body	160 characters (single segment)	Longer messages split into multiple segments and may be billed/delivered separately.
Push Notification	Title	50 characters	Titles longer than this truncate on most Android/iOS lock screens.
Push Notification	Body	150 characters	Lead with the benefit, not the feature.
SEO / Meta	Meta description	155-160 characters	Google truncates beyond this; include the primary keyword early.
Paid Search	Headline (Google Ads)	30 characters per headline	Up to 3 headlines are combined; each must stand alone.
Blog / Web	Page title / H1	60 characters	Keep the brand name out of the title unless it's the subject.

8. Required Disclosures & Disclaimers

Solace Health operates in a category with specific disclosure obligations. The table below defines exactly when a disclosure is required, the approved wording, and where it must appear. Do not paraphrase disclosure text without Legal sign-off.

Content Scenario	Required Disclosure Text	Placement Rule
Any content describing a health benefit, outcome, or symptom relief	"Results may vary; not a substitute for professional advice."	Immediately below the claim, same font size no smaller than 70% of body text.
Testimonials or member success stories	"[Name]'s experience is individual and results are not guaranteed for all members."	Directly beneath the testimonial, never in a footnote only.
Any content mentioning a specific condition, medication, or treatment	"This is not medical advice. Consult a licensed provider before making changes to your care."	At the end of the post/article, above the CTA.
Paid partnerships or sponsored health content	"Sponsored content. Solace Health received compensation for this placement."	At the very top of the content, before any claims are made (FTC requirement).

General disclaimer (use when no scenario above applies but a claim is being made): >

"Results may vary; not a substitute for professional advice."

Regional Disclosure Requirements

Region	Requirement
United States	HIPAA notice required on any page collecting health information: "Your information is protected under HIPAA. See our Notice of Privacy Practices."
European Union / UK	GDPR notice required: "Your health data is processed under GDPR Article 9 special category protections. See our Data Processing Notice."
California	CCPA notice required on data-collection forms: "California residents have the right to know, delete, and opt out of the sale of personal information."

9. Crisis & Sensitive-Topic Communication Protocol

Acknowledge fast. Publicly acknowledge any service disruption, error, or complaint pattern within 1 hour, even if the full fix isn't ready. Silence reads worse than an honest "we're on it."

Drop the personality, keep the humanity. Suspend Solace Health's lighter tone pillars (wit, edge, playfulness) during an active incident. Empathy and clarity remain non-negotiable.

One voice, one channel of record. Designate a single channel (usually the status page or a pinned post) as the source of truth; all other channels link back to it rather than repeating varying details.

No speculation. Never guess at root cause, timeline, or blame publicly. State only what is confirmed.

Close the loop. Once resolved, publish a plain-language summary of what happened and what changed – silence after resolution erodes trust as much as silence during the incident.

Legal & Compliance sign-off. Any incident involving data, safety, or regulated claims requires Compliance sign-off before any public statement, even a holding statement.

10. Glossary: Approved Terminology

Quick reference mapping restricted terms to their approved replacements. See Section 5 for the full rationale behind each restriction.

Instead of...	Use...
cure	"may help manage," "is designed to support"
guaranteed results	"many members report," "clinically studied to help"
FDA-approved (unverified)	"cleared for [specific use]" only after legal sign-off
best in the world	"one of the ways we help," or a specific, cited stat cheap	"affordable," "accessible pricing"
diagnose / diagnosis (in marketing copy)	"helps you understand your symptoms," "screening tool"
miracle	"a treatment option that's helped many members"
100% safe	"generally well-tolerated," "reviewed by our clinical team"
instant relief	"fast-acting," with timeframe data if available painless	"designed to minimize discomfort"
addiction-free / non-addictive (unqualified)	cite the specific study or omit the claim doctor recommended (unqualified)	"recommended by our clinical advisory board of licensed physicians"
risk-free trial	"free 14-day trial, cancel anytime"
all-natural (unqualified)	list the specific ingredients instead

Appendix A: Machine-Readable Rule Reference

The rules below are the atomic, structured version of Sections 4-8, formatted for ingestion by content-review tooling (human or AI). Each rule maps to a Rule ID for traceability.

Rule ID	Category	Rule Text
RL0229	Logo	The Solace Health logo may only appear on backgrounds that meet a minimum 4.5:1 contrast ratio against #22333B.
RL0230	Logo	Never display the Solace Health logo smaller than 24px digital / 0.5in print; below this size the wordmark becomes illegible.
RL0231	Color	#C6AC8F is reserved for calls-to-action and small highlight moments — it must never be used as a large background field.
RL0232	Color	Never substitute unapproved colors for #22333B, #EAE0D5, or #C6AC8F in any customer-facing material.
RL0233	Typography	Clash Display is used exclusively for headlines and display copy; Satoshi is used for all body text and UI copy.
RL0234	Typography	Headline text set in Clash Display must never fall below 18pt in digital contexts for accessibility.
RL0235	Voice & Tone	Every piece of Solace Health copy should sound like it could only come from Solace Health — avoid generic category language that any competitor could use verbatim.
RL0236	Voice & Tone	Solace Health’s voice is empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring. Copy that reads as the opposite of these traits (e.g. cold, generic, or overly formal where warmth is expected) is off-brand.
RL0237	Messaging	All Solace Health messaging must tie back to the mission: Our mission is to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to digital healthcare.
RL0238	Messaging	The approved Solace Health tagline is ‘Solace — Do It Right.’. It must be reproduced verbatim — do not paraphrase, translate loosely, or alter punctuation in official materials.
RL0239	Legal & Compliance	Content that makes claims requiring substantiation must include the disclaimer: 'Results may vary; not a substitute for professional advice.'

RL0240	Imagery	Solace Health imagery style is: bright, natural light with candid human moments — no stock-photo stiffness. Stock photography that contradicts this direction should be rejected in creative review.

Appendix B: Worked Examples - Compliant vs. Violation

Real examples of content evaluated against this guidebook, with the reasoning a reviewer (or an AI content-compliance tool) should apply.

Example 1 - Product Description - Compliant

Designed for Urban Commuters, this is Solace Health doing what it does best — helping you get more done with less hassle, without the noise.

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0235)

Example 2 - Push Notification - Compliant

Hey! Your Solace Health update is ready — a quick way to get more done with less hassle.

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0236)

Example 3 - Press Release Snippet - Compliant

Solace Health today reaffirmed its mission to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to digital healthcare, announcing a new initiative aimed at helping Urban Commuters get more done with less hassle.

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0235)

Example 4 - Social Media Post - Compliant

*Hey — meet the Solace Health way to get more done with less hassle. Solace — Do It Right.
#Solace*

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0235)

Example 5 - Video Ad Script Line - Compliant

VOICEOVER: 'At Solace Health, we believe Urban Commuters deserve better. That's why we help you get more done with less hassle.'

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0236)

Example 6 - Website Hero Copy - Compliant

Solace — Do It Right. Solace Health exists so Urban Commuters can get more done with less hassle — nothing more complicated than that.

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0236)

Example 7 - Blog Intro - Compliant

If you've ever wished digital healthcare felt less complicated, you're exactly who Solace Health was built for. Here's how we help you get more done with less hassle.

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0236)

Example 8 - Ad Headline - Compliant

Solace Health: Solace — Do It Right.

Reasoning: Matches Solace Health's tone (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring), reflects the mission, and uses approved messaging elements (tagline/benefit language) correctly. (Related rule: RL0236)

Example 9 - Customer Support Reply - Violation (Off_Mission_Messaging, High severity)

Solace Health is expanding into flash-sale daily deals with rotating discounts on unrelated third-party products.

Reasoning: This contradicts Solace Health's stated mission ('Our mission is to bring honesty and craftsmanship back to digital healthcare.') and its positioning as a Jester archetype brand. All messaging must tie back to the mission. (Related rule: RL0238)

Example 10 - Product Description - Violation (Logo_Misuse, High severity)

Print flyer proof: body copy overlaps into the logo's clear-space zone because the layout ran long.

Reasoning: Violates Solace Health's logo rules: Maintain clear space equal to the width of the icon on all sides. and a minimum size of 24px digital / 0.5in print. Stretching, adding effects, or recoloring the logo is explicitly prohibited. (Related rule: RL0229)

Example 11 - Ad Headline - Violation (Unsubstantiated_Claim, High severity)

Solace Health guarantees improved outcomes for every customer, no exceptions.

Reasoning: Makes a claim requiring substantiation without including the required disclaimer: 'Results may vary; not a substitute for professional advice.'. (Related rule: RL0239)

Example 12 - Video Ad Script Line - Violation (Color_Misuse, Medium severity)

Landing page mockup note: hero section background is filled edge-to-edge in #C6AC8F (the reserved CTA accent), pushing #22333B out of the composition entirely.

Reasoning: Breaks Solace Health's color rules: #22333B must anchor at least 60% of any composition, and #C6AC8F is reserved for small CTA moments, not large background fields. Introducing unapproved colors is also prohibited. (Related rule: RL0232)

Example 13 - Press Release Snippet - Violation (Font_Substitution, Low severity)

Email template note: headline set in Arial instead of Clash Display because 'the designer was on PTO and needed a fast fallback'.

Reasoning: Violates the typography rule requiring Clash Display for headlines and Satoshi for body copy; system-font substitution requires design team sign-off, which wasn't obtained. (Related rule: RL0234)

Example 14 - Website Hero Copy - Violation (Tone_Mismatch, Medium severity)

Solace Health provides comprehensive solutions leveraging synergistic value propositions.

Reasoning: This copy reads cold, corporate, and generic — the opposite of Solace Health's defined voice (empathetic, inclusive, candid, reassuring). It could belong to any brand, which directly breaks the rule that copy should be recognizably Solace Health's and reflect its tone attributes. (Related rule: RL0235)

Example 15 - Blog Intro - Violation (Imagery_Mismatch, Low severity)

Ad creative note: stock photo shows a generic handshake in a beige boardroom, which contradicts Solace Health's defined imagery style (bright, natural light with candid human moments — no stock-photo stiffness).

Reasoning: Solace Health's imagery guideline calls for 'bright, natural light with candid human moments — no stock-photo stiffness'. Generic boardroom stock photography contradicts this direction and should be rejected in creative review. (Related rule: RL0240)

Example 16 - Social Media Post - Violation (Tagline_Alteration, Medium severity)

Solace Health: Solace — Do It Right — every single time, guaranteed!

Reasoning: The approved tagline 'Solace — Do It Right.' has been altered with added words and punctuation. Taglines must be reproduced verbatim in official materials, not paraphrased or embellished. (Related rule: RL0238)

11. Review, Approval & Escalation

Role	Name	Responsibility	Contact
Brand Owner	Renee Petrov	Final sign-off on voice/tone and visual identity questions	renee.petrov@solacehealth.com
Compliance Reviewer	Maya Chen	Reviews all regulated-claim and disclosure content	maya.chen@solacehealth.com
Content Lead	Sofia Larsson	First-line review for channel formatting and restricted words	sofia.larsson@solacehealth.com

Escalation path: Content Lead review → Compliance review (required for any claim, disclosure, or restricted-word edge case) → Brand Owner sign-off for anything setting new precedent.

Questions about this guidebook should go to renee.petrov@solacehealth.com. This document is reviewed quarterly; the next scheduled review is January 15, 2027.

Solace Health Brand Voice & Content Guidebook – Version 1.9 – January 7, 2026 – Internal & Agency Use Only – All brand names, people, and figures in this document are fictional and generated for demonstration/training purposes.